This Testimonial was Signed during the Session of the General Convention, held in Philadelphia, in the month of October, 1883, the Centennial of the American Church, and bears the Signatures of all the American Bishops who were in attendance.

It is of pre-eminent importance that the Church shall have a Literature to express its best thought and to stimulate its mental activity. It is a matter of duty, as well as of pardonable pride, to make this Literature as good as possible, and at least to keep it up to the average standard of the age.

At the head of our current Church Literature stands the "American Church Review," a monthly periodical. During the last few years and under its present editorship, it has won a deservedly high place among all similar publications in the country. It is as comprehensive in its tone as is the Church itself. All schools of thought that may lawfully claim recognition are welcome to its pages. The most vital questions of the day have been discussed by it with dignity, learning and commanding ability. The field it occupies, intellectually considered, should not be allowed to become vacant without inflicting a stigma upon the character and culture of our Church.

From a merely nominal subscription list it has advanced its circulation to some 2,500. To bring it within the means of all the Clergy, has been obliged to cheapen its rates to a degree that forbids the hope of much profit even with a greatly extended list of subscribers. In order to increase its efficiency, it needs the kind and measure of help which other Christian bodies have been ready and prompt to extend to their best organs of opinion.

It is enough to add, that the undersigned warmly commend the "Review" to the favorable consideration of the Clergy and Laity, whose devotion to the best interests of the Church justify a belief in their willingness to lend a helping hand to every good work.

Philadelphia, October, 1883.
